

Institutional Repository - University of Colombo

Guideline for self-uploading

Prepared by

Main Library
University of Colombo

In the electronic publishing era, academic institutions have increasingly recognized institutional repositories (IR) as an essential infrastructure of scholarly dissemination. An IR is a digital research archive consisting of accessible collections of scholarly work that represent the intellectual capital of an institution. It is a revenue for institutions to manage the digital scholarship their communities produce, maximize access to research outputs both before and after publication and also to increase the visibility and academic prestige of both the institution and authors.

University of Colombo Institutional Repository now, provides you the opportunity to upload your own publications to the repository. Guidelines are attached herewith for your reference.

Copyright Disclaimer

The Library Network, University of Colombo will not be responsible for any Copyright infringement occurred during the article uploading process by the individual researchers.

Please use Sherpa Romeo service to obtain more information on publisher copyright policies & self-archiving to ensure self- archiving permissions through: <http://sherpa.ac.uk/romeo/index.php> or contact the editor of the journal or the publisher of books and conference proceedings individually to obtain permission to upload the publications to the Institutional Repository.

Please be kind enough to fill the disclaimer (<http://archive.cmb.ac.lk:8080/research/CopyrightDisclaimer.docx>) and send to sallaw@lib.cmb.ac.lk with you electronic signature OR as a scanned copy. After receiving the disclaimer only, the permission for uploading articles will be given.

If you have any clarifications please contact Mrs. PKS Manatunga, Senior Assistant Librarian, sallaw@lib.cmb.ac.lk

Thank You

The impact of irrigation on agriculture productivity: Evidence from Sri Lanka See

Sri Lanka has a great history of irrigation dating back to 500 BC. During the post-independence era, successive governments launched a number of major and minor irrigation projects aiming at, among other targets, agricultural and rural development. Nevertheless, irrigation-productivity nex...

Sri Lanka Transport Board (SLTB), the foremost public bus transport provider in Sri Lanka, recorded "financial surplus" in 2017, a rare occurrence for the perennially loss-making organisation. Fathoming the roots of this apparent performance turn-around, one of the most important cost components, namely fuel expenditure, its constituents and their trends over the period from 2009-2017, was subjected to detailed examination. The study used depot-based and region-based data published by the SLTB and deployed analytical techniques such as graphical method and trend analysis. The study outcomes revealed that the surplus recorded in 2017 could in no way be attributable to any gain in fuel efficiency (number of bus kilometers operated per litre of fuel consumed) in that year over the preceding years.
