

Case Book for Diploma in General Dental Practice Part 1
DGDP - 1987

D 38

Edentulous, alveolar ridge invasive squamous cell carcinoma in relation to the mucosa of the ; Restoration of vital upper central incisors, with Ellis class II fractures, employing light-activated composite and acid-etch technique; (Orthograde-retrograde) method following an unsuccessful treatment by an operator one day treatment of a fractured tooth by; Dental materials employed in cases no.I no.3 ; selection of light-activated composite as an anterior restorative material and advantages and disadvantages over previously used materials; Pemphigus vulgaris two forms of presentation of; Lichen planus presenting histopathological features of submucous fibrosis; Haemophilic dental treatment and management of a diagnosed; Bleeding disorder a case of an oral manifestation of a rare; Salivary calculi,(submandibular-duct); Oro-antral fistula the repair of an; Malposition of a central incisor and obstruction of its eruption auto-transplantation had been done subsequently; Reimplantation of an avulsed tooth; Gingivae benign soft tissue lesion of the; Parallax dental radiography method of; Mandible an odontogenic keratocyst of the; Malocclusion an orthodontic problem with mild angle class II division I; Condylar hypoplasia of the mandible; Mitral valvotomy due to mitral valve stenosis the improvement of oral hygiene of a patient,(medically compromised) who had undergone; Mitral valve stenosis due to rheumatic fever a case in general medicine a case study of; Amelogenesis imperfecta